SEVILLE COMMUNION

BY ARTURO PÉREZ-REVERTE

In Seville, Spain, there is a place where merchants are threatening the house of God and where a small 17-century church, neglected by the power of the Church and the lay authorities, kills to defend itself.

When a hacker known only as Vespers cracks the Vatican firewall and leaves an inflammatory message on the pope's computer, Father Lorenzo Quart of the Holy See's Institute of External Affairs is swiftly dispatched to investigate. But, once in Spain, Quart soon finds himself caught between the powerful developers who have a stake in the Baroque ruin, an Andalusian beauty, and his loyalty to the Vatican and his own vows.
